Since 2006 Nicole 'NOE' (pronounced NO) Morris, proud Queens girl and avid Hip Hop enthusiast, has impacted much of the Hip Hop and NYC Underground scene with her view of the world via her online television show, NOE TV. With over 60 episodes under her belt NOE gave a voice to countless undiscovered talent throughout the United States, while showing us her growth as a story teller, filmmaker and human being.

In summer 2013, NOE was diagnosed with cervical cancer. Upon losing her job, insurance payments have been covered through savings, which are now exhausted. After countless surgeries, chemotherapy and all other failed attempts to contain the cancer, her condition worsened and she is now in the fight for her life. Doctors have continuously denied NOE's request for Holistic / Cannabis treatment which she believes will give her a fighting chance at beating this cancer.

A true cannabis enthusiast, NOE advocates for the progression of marijuana's cultural perception as possessing both recreational and medicinal qualities. Lending her voice and media platform to "Freedomize" Marijuana, NOE created her own promotional and marketing materials for the 'I "Bud" You' movement garnering support from Hip Hop Heavyweights such as Jadakiss, Papoose & Tragedy Khadafi to name a few. Our goal is to raise enough funds to cover her transportation to a facility, whether in Colorado or California, which specializes in healing cancer with medicinal marijuana, as well as any future medical expenses for the treatment she urgently needs.

Following the fundamental message behind the elements of Hip Hop and community, all who love NOE and respect her grind have banded together to create "The NOE Cancer Fund". In true to NOE Style we are aligning various elements of artistic expression through filmmaking with Hip Hop influence to feature some of the most potent creators and Lyricists representing Film and NYC Hip Hop Today through the Sunday Night Screenings Short Film Festival.

Currently hospitalized in NYC, we 'NOE' the alternative medication she seeks, yet is being denied, will increase her chances of survival, return her back to optimum health and get her back to being the bold ally of the Up and Coming and True School Greats of Hip Hop.

100% of the proceeds will go towards covering NOE's Travel, medical bills, medication and treatment.
